

MASTERCLASS

“From Research to Practice in Peace & International Studies” WITH PROFESSOR DAN DRUCKMAN

Mozambique Peace unravels, Nagorno-Karabakh erupts, Israeli Palestinian recurrent violence and the Trump-Putin confrontation - these are at the forefront of current International Politics.

This Master Class offers an opportunity to explore these with leading conflict resolution scholar Professor Dan Druckman. We will discuss research on such topics as:

- Justice in the peace process
- Settlements and resolutions
- Enemy Images
- The contact hypothesis
- The security dilemma
- Alternative mediation approaches

Solutions are in demand but not offered. You are asked to help improve these sensitive situations using research knowledge - you will:

- try to understand these complex situations, and
- provide advice to the real-world actors

Participants will engage in interactive learning exercises and have the opportunity to reflect on lessons learned for both scholarship and practice.

WHEN

Thursday
18th May 2017
1pm - 3:30pm

WHERE

Forgan Smith Bldg
Room W431
St Lucia Campus

The Master Class is open to all graduate students and Faculty

Spaces are limited and Reservations are essential for this event - send your name to polsis.gradcentre@uq.edu.au by Monday 15th May, 2017 to secure a place.