

Seminar - "Thinking about Religion and International Order"

The effects of religious beliefs, identities, and movements on the modern international order are the subject of considerable current debate. This seminar brings together two of the world's leading specialists on religion and world politics to discuss the challenges, dilemmas, and opportunities of thinking in new ways about the relationship between religion and international order. Professor Shakman Hurd has recently published Beyond Religious Freedom (Princeton University Press, 2015), and Professor Barnett is in Australia to promote his new book The Star and the Stripes: A History of the Foreign Policies of the American Jews (Princeton University Press, 2016).
